MOUNTAIN VINEYARDS

WINE FROM HIGHER GROUND.

Atlas Peak, Howell Mountain, Spring Mountain District, and Mount Veeder are the cornerstone mountain vineyards behind Atlas Peak's Mountain Cabernet Sauvignon series. These mountain appellations frame the Napa Valley and provide ideal growing conditions for bold, well-structured wines. Thin soils, lots of sunlight and cooler daytime temperatures force grapes to go into survival mode, building the character needed to make wines that express the rugged elegance which come from great fruit and hard work in hard-to-reach places.

Welcome!

Baltimore Bend Vineyard is a family owned and operated business located in the northeastern corner of Lafayette County along historic Highway 24, 5 miles west of Waverly. Baltimore Bend Vineyard, which takes its name from a nearby bend in the Missouri River and a sunken boat named 'Baltimore,' rests along the path of the expeditionary company of Lewis & Clark and parts of the Santa Fe Trail.

This area in northeastern Lafayette County marks the southern boundary of glacial fields during the Ice Age. As the ice retreated, blowing winds deposited deep, fertile, silt loam soil that is excellent for growing grapes.

At Baltimore Bend Vineyard, our philosophy is the grapes make the wine. That's why we focus on producing the highest quality grapes so that we can produce excellent wines.

Our Mission

We invite you to visit our winery to experience a fun, welcoming environment without intimidation or pretense while offering the highest quality wines, wine-related products and overall services. Come taste and learn more about Missouri wines and find your favorite. Come see us soon!

Most rivers of the Southwest cut through relatively soft sedimentary rock, forming canyons that tend to be quite wide, colorful and stepped - descending in a series of cliffs and ledges through layers of differing hardness. When rivers flow across harder igneous rock they produce steeper gorges, spectacular in different ways, such as Hell's Canyon in Idaho, the deepest in the US, or the multicolored Grand Canyon of the Yellowstone in Wyoming.

One of the steepest, darkest and most rugged of such canyons is formed by the Gunnison River as it flows through hard ancient rocks at the western edge of the Rocky Mountains, on its way to joining the Colorado river at Grand Junction. The canyon walls are composed of volcanic schist, predominantly black in color, and as the gorge reaches depths of over 2,000 feet while often being only 1,500 feet across, sunlight illuminates the walls only briefly, hence the name 'Black Canyon'. It is unsettling, almost frightening to stand at the very edge of one of the canyon overlooks, such is the menace and sheerness of the jagged rocks below.

A New National Park: On October 21st, 1999, Black Canyon was officially upgraded in status from a national monument and became the 55th national park in the US, and the third smallest. Entrance fees increased sharply on Jan 1st 2007, from $8 to $15 per vehicle.

Access: The canyon was originally over 50 miles long, but three dams have been built along the eastern (upstream) section flooding two thirds of the gorge - this is now part of the Curecanti National Recreation Area (NRA) which offers many recreational opportunities based around the artificial lakes. Only the lower 13 miles of the canyon remain unspoilt but this includes the deepest and most scenic section. The river here may be approached from the north or the south but most visitor services are along the south rim and are reached by the short spur road CO 347, which joins US 50, one of the main trans-Rockies routes, a few miles east of Montrose. Here, the terrain is quite flat, but CO 347 climbs steadily through scrub-covered foothills to an elevation of 8,500 feet near the canyon rim, yet with no indication of the great gorge ahead. There is a campground just past the park entrance, with plenty of sites although they are rather enclosed by vegetation.

Hotels: The nearest towns with hotels close to Black Canyon of the Gunnison are Delta (35 miles), Gunnison (62 miles) and Montrose (13 miles) - follow the links for hotel descriptions and reservations.

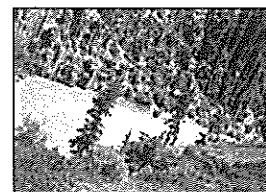

Viewpoints: Before the campsite, the unpaved East Portal Road forks off and descends with many sharp bends, following close to the river upstream, to the East Portal Dam which marks the boundary between the national park and the Curecanti NRA. However, all the canyon overlooks are found along the main entrance road, which continues alongside the canyon rim for 8 miles. The road passes about 12 named viewpoints, some of which require a short walk to see the canyon. There are also a couple of nature paths across flattish land around the rims, and three difficult trails down to the river.

Black Canyon: As with some other canyons, seeing many viewpoints of the same feature can become a little repetitive, although here the character of Black Canyon does change along the river. Around the visitor center and for a couple of miles northwest, the cliffs are very steep and the canyon is at its narrowest - only 1,150 feet across at The Narrows. There are several overlooks of this area, which has amazingly jagged, precipitous rocks and pinnacles. In many places, thin veins of white gneiss criss-cross the predominantly black cliffs. Further west, the surrounding hills are lower and the canyon opens out becoming less deep and more V-shaped. From High Point, at the end of the road, it is possible to see 8 miles further west, almost to the end of the gorge, but there is no easy access to the canyon beyond this point. The land either side of this section of the river is an officially designated Wilderness Area and there are many steep ridges and valleys that provide a barrier to travel.

The North Rim: The North Rim is reached by a good quality gravel road, which is closed by snow during winter, and has another selection of overlooks along the canyon edge, a campground and various trails including three that descend to the river. Because of the more difficult access and lack of facilities, few people visit the north rim although the views are equally good as those from the south.

Welcome to Black Canyon

The Black Canyon of the Gunnison's unique and spectacular landscape was formed slowly by the action of water and rock scouring down through hard Proterozoic crystalline rock.

No other canyon in North America combines the narrow opening, sheer walls, and startling depths offered by the Black Canyon of the Gunnison.

Who We Are

Since 1999 we have progressively planted more acreage on our 30-acre orchard/vineyard property in Riesling grapes. We also are experimenting with Pinot Noir and Pinot Gris, both of which look promising. Our vineyards are within sight of the Gunnison Gorge, which lies just below the Black Canyon of the Gunnison. The Black Canyon is one of the most dramatic canyons in the world, and was recently named as one of America's newest National Parks. Our vineyards and winery are named after this wild and spectacular wilderness. The vineyards are situated at an elevation of approximately 5800 feet, on the southern slopes of the Grand Mesa. To the west lies the Uncompahgre Plateau, and further west the spectacular desert and canyon country of Eastern Utah. The location is perfect for cool climate grapes, which is one of the reasons we settled in the valley of the North Fork of the Gunnison River.

This property had been in a fruit growing family for over 40 years, and was known for producing some of the finest Red and Golden Delicious, Jonathan and Jonagold apples in Colorado, as well as outstanding tart cherries. Unfortunately, due to competition from foreign apple producers, many of the historically- significant apple producing areas of the Western United States are declining in producing acreage. Western Colorado is no different. We still produce wonderful apples of most of these varieties, but our future is clearly in wine.

In 1999 we planted a plot of Riesling grapes, because we knew the variety would succeed in our climate of long, warm days and cool nights. Riesling produced from other North Fork growers had won many national and international awards in the years preceding 1999. We traveled to Switzerland and Western Germany to study the Riesling vineyards of these famous growing areas, and came back even more convinced that our climate would produce world-class Riesling grapes. We have always loved the amazing variety of wines available from Riesling grapes, as one can experience in the famous German products. Riesling wine has been attracting increasing attention, including recent articles in Wine Spectator and the New York Times. It has been described as the white wine of the future, and many think it is quickly replacing Chardonnay as the white wine of choice in America.

Our Riesling vines have done extremely well, producing their first commercial crop in 2003. Our harvests have consistently produced very high quality results, with an almost perfect balance. We are very proud of our Riesling wines, and believe that they compete in quality with any produced in North America. As we continue to refine our vineyards and begin making wine in our new state-of-the-art facility in 2005, we hope to become Colorado's leading producer of Riesling wine, made exclusively from grapes grown within a few miles of our winery on the high mesas of Western Colorado.

Cathedral Mountain Vineyard is planted in the high desert mountains, 18 miles south of Alpine, Texas. We chose this area for its relentless sun, cool nights and mineral-rich, rocky, volcanic soil -- conditions that are well suited to the Spanish and Rhone inspired wines we wanted to grow. We planted 7,000 vines in April of 2004. The bulk of the vines are Tempranillo and Syrah with some Grenache, Petite Sirah and Mourvedre for blending. We also have a fair amount of Cabernet Sauvignon and a bit of Cabernet Franc. The first crop will be harvested in 2006. The powerful, savory, and rich wines we expect will make the wait worthwhile.

History

Dry Creek Vineyard History 1972 - 2007

The history of Dry Creek Vineyard is a long and colorful one. Founded in 1972 by David S. Stare, Dry Creek Vineyard paved the way for a renaissance of winemaking and viticulture in the Dry Creek Valley. Before his arrival, the Dry Creek Valley was little more than a few family farms and prune orchards. It was Dave's vision to start a Loire Valley inspired winery that reintroduced consumers to the wines of northern Sonoma County.

Winery Construction in 1972

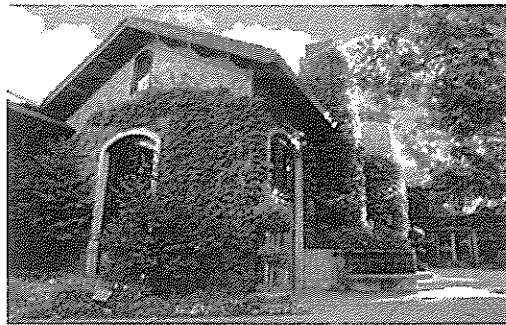

Without a doubt, David Stare is a pioneer. Heading west in the late 1960s, Dave personified the character and work ethic of early Gold Rush pioneers. Educated at Massachusetts Institute of Technology (MIT), Dave worked for the B&O Railroad for several years but quickly realized that his true calling was in the wine industry. Inspired by his trips to the Loire Valley, Dave headed west to California to start his own family winery.

Upon his arrival, Dave began taking winemaking classes at UC Davis as a graduate student. On the weekends, he spent time looking at vineyard land from Monterey to Mendocino. It was during one of those weekend trips that fate drew Dave to the Dry Creek Valley. When he saw an old prune orchard across the street from the Dry Creek General Store, Dave realized that he had found his dream location. He purchased the orchard and began planting vines. Captivated by his memories of Loire-style wines, Sauvignon Blanc seemed destined to figure prominently in the Dry Creek Vineyard portfolio. However, several famed vineyard specialists advised him against planting Sauvignon Blanc. Always defiant, Dave planted the varietal anyway and the rest, as they say, is history.

Today, our second-generation family owned winery continues to evolve and grow to meet the demands of a global wine marketplace. The primary mission of our winery is to produce distinctive wines that over deliver on quality. For more than 30 years, this pursuit of winemaking excellence has lead to many international awards and accolades. With a loyal following of wine club members and customers, the future of Dry Creek Vineyard has never been brighter.

Duncan Peak, California, USA

Duncan Peak dominates the western skyline of Hopland, California, in Mendocino County. The floodplain in the foreground is part of the Sanel Valley, a downdropped block along the Maacama fault system. This fault system is one thread of the wide set of faults, including the San Andreas fault to the west of here, that accommodates the motion between the North American and Pacific crustal plates. A short distance to the east is The Geysers, where a subterranean steam field supports the world's largest geothermal power facility. Here's a good introduction to geothermal power.
